

President Asks Bigger Army: Longer Service

Ousted Americans Sail for Home on Transport Friday

U. S. S. West Point to Bring Over 300 to Native Country

Washington, July 21.—(AP)—More than 300 American consular officials and employees and their families—ordered out of axis-dominated Europe when axis officials were expelled from the United States—moved today toward Lisbon from where they will sail for New York on Friday aboard the navy transport West Point.

The largest unit, totalling 234, comprising those expelled from Germany, occupied France, Norway, The Netherlands, Belgium and Yugoslavia, was reported concentrating at Frankfurt, Germany. This group will cross the French border into Spain at Hendaye and go on to Lisbon by special train. While reports of the concentration at Frankfurt comprised the latest information available here, an embassy in Berlin said last night that the group left Frankfurt yesterday by special train bound for Lisbon.

After some delay at San Remo, Italy, a smaller group composed of 76 legation and consular officials from Greece and consular officers from Italy, was reported en route across France, headed for Lisbon via Barcelona and Madrid.

With the German group were several Americans who had been held prisoner by the nazis but were released as a result of negotiations by the state department involving the release of some German nationals who had been held in this country.

Correspondents Freed
Among the Americans were Jay Allen, correspondent of the North American Newspaper Alliance, who was captured when attempting to cross the border between unoccupied and occupied France without a German permit, and Richard Hottel, United Press Correspondent in Berlin, who has been held in prison for four months.

Before crossing into Spain the special train was scheduled to pick up 21 American ambulance drivers, taken captive when a nazi submarine marine sank the Egyptian steamer Zamzam on April 17, and released after protracted negotiations.

Each of the Americans has been permitted to take $2,500 or the equivalent out of German and Italian territory, but has been limited otherwise to personal baggage.

The census of American officials from Axis-controlled Europe leaves the United States without consular representation in most of the continent.

Among the consular officials ordered to leave Germany, Italy and axis dominated European countries, all of whom are expected to return to the United States on the West Point except two or three to be assigned to Turkey, was:

Mutilation Deaths of Two Girls Last Week Investigated

Salem, Mass., July 21.—(AP)—A fifteen-year-old schoolboy pleaded innocent today on a charge of murder in the mutilation killing of Constance Shipp, 15, of Reading, while police questioned a suspect in a second attack slaying, that of pretty 19-year-old Frances M. Cochran, whose body was found in a thick off a lonely "Lovers' Lane".

In Woburn District court, Raymond F. Woodward Jr., of Reading, burst into tears when he was held without bail for hearing July 31 in the Shipp case.

Even as the Woodward boy was being brought to court, police methodically searching Salem woodland in the Cochran case found a young man asleep in a parked car, near where her body was found, and took him into custody.

Body in Parsonage
Police found the Shipp girl's body in the parsonage of the Reading Baptist church, during the absence of the pastor and his family on vacation.

An anonymous telephone tip led police to search the woods off a "lovers' lane" near the Salem-Swampscott line yesterday, where they found the ravished body of the Cochran girl.

The Shipp girl disappeared last Tuesday while returning to her home after a shopping trip to a grocery store.

The Cochran girl dropped from sight Thursday after alighting from a bus in which she rode towards her home in Lynn from her work as a bookkeeper in a leather concern.

Advertisers

Racine, Wis., July 21.—(AP)—Veteran Fireman Henry Trinkle, suspended for alleged insubordination and unbecoming conduct, used a bizarre method to advertise his feud with the fire chief.

He had himself tied to a big wooden cross, and, attired only in a loin cloth, Trinkle was paraded atop an automobile through the downtown section, with explanatory signs on the car.

Police arrested him for disturbing traffic.

Measure to Allow Boosts in School Tax Levies Vetoed

Springfield, Ill., July 21.—(AP)—Governor Green vetoed today a bill which would have allowed so-called unit school districts—those operating grades one to twelve—to levy without referendum an annual tax rate of $1.75 on each $100 of property valuation.

Present law limits the tax rate of such combined elementary and high school districts to one dollar, unless voters approve a higher rate through a referendum.

Pointing out the bill would permit a 75 per cent school tax increase without formal approval of the voters, the governor said in his veto message:

"I have adopted and adhered to the policy of refusing to impose any new or increased local taxes without x x a vote of the electors".

Dixon Included

Approximately 50 Illinois school districts, including a number of the largest downstate city school districts, are of the unit type. Among them are Rockford, Springfield, Galesburg, Bloomington, Champaign, Peoria, Alton, Quincy, Dixon, Macomb, Freeport and Cairo.

The Illinois Education Association, a teachers' organization, supported the tax bill in the legislature, contending that unit districts have less taxing authority and revenue than communities which have separate elementary and high school districts.

While Governor Green's veto killed the main unit school tax measure (HB402), the governor has still to act on another bill (HB406) which contains an amendment providing for the same authority.

The latter bill, by Rep. Dean S. McGaughney (D-Mt. Zion), authorizes school boards, by referendum approval of voters, to build residences for school principals or superintendents.

Has Until July 26

Word from the governor's office was he has until July 26 to act on the McGaughney bill.

Reps. David Hunter and Edward C. Hunter, both of Rockford, were sponsors of the vetoed bill.

In addition to allowing a 75 per cent rate increase without referendum, the bill would authorize an additional 25 cent hike with a referendum.

"It is difficult for me to believe that the voters in any particular district, where their children are depending upon the public school facilities for an education, would wilfully or stubbornly refuse to approve a needed increase in school funds", Governor Green's message said.

Irving F. Pearson, executive secretary of the Illinois Education Association, said in a statement, "we sincerely regret Governor Green's veto".

British Claim V-Army of Millions Is Mobilizing Throughout Europe

London, July 21.—(AP)—Claiming a "V" army of millions mobilized throughout German-conquered countries in a whistling, tapping, sign-painting campaign aimed at nazi nerves, British authorities advised the unseen Victory Legion to wait patiently, ready for the time to strike.

"Colonel Britton" the man behind the BBC mike which dined the victory mobilization broadcast in 17 European languages throughout Sunday, appealed for more V's in sound and sign across the continent.

He said he would broadcast again Friday.

Twenty-four hours after he started his Sunday morning mobilization broadcasts by thumping the Morse code V, three dots and a dash, on a big drum he declared the nazis bewildered and the V

Issue Squarely Up To Congress, Chief Writes in Message

Says Danger to Nation Is Greater Than It Was a Year Ago

Washington, July 21.—(AP)—Urging a longer army service for draftees, National Guardsmen and reservists, President Roosevelt said today German attacks had brought nazi domination closer to the western hemisphere and that danger to American safety was "infinitely greater" than a year ago.

"We Americans cannot afford to speculate with the security of America," he said in a special message asking Congress to acknowledge that a national emergency exists either for a specific period or until revoked by Congress or the President.

Such a declaration by Congress would permit the retention in active service beyond the original one-year limitation on selectees, guardsmen and reservists. The President asked also removal of the 900,000 limitation on the number of draftees who may be in service at one time.

He did not indicate what term of service would be required. Presumably it would be for the period of emergency.

"The intentional situation is not less grave but is far more grave than it was a year ago," the President said. "It is so grave, in my opinion, and in the opinion of all who are conversant with the facts, that the army should be maintained in effective strength and without diminution of its effective numbers in a complete state of readiness."

Small by Comparison

"Small as it is by comparison with other armies, it should not suffer any form of disorganization or disintegration."

Emphasizing that time counts, Roosevelt said disintegration would begin in two months unless Congress acted, and asserted "the responsibility rests solely with the Congress."

"Schemes and plans of aggressors against American security are so evident," the President said in the message which he personally recorded for later radio broadcasting, "that the United States and the rest of the Americas are definitely imperiled in their national interests. x x x"

"Every move up and down and across Europe, and into Asia, and into Africa has been conducted according to a time schedule utilizing in every case an overwhelming superiority not only in material but in trained men as well. New Aggressions by Nazis Feared

Washington, July 21.—(AP)—Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, said today that the United States had information that Germany was planning new steps of aggression against remaining independent countries in Europe.

He made the statement at a press conference but did not go into details. His comment aroused speculation, however, on the possibility that he meant that Spain and Portugal might be due for attacks.

Welles also disclosed that the United States had promised full support to Bolivia in the event that an international incident arose from an alleged attempted nazi coup in that country and from the ordered expulsion of the German minister there.

Eldon Myers, Polo, Killed in Accident on Pines Highway

Fatal Collision on Narrow
Bridge at 10:30 This Morning

(Telegraph Special Service)

Oregon, July 21.—Eldon Myers of Polo was instantly killed at about 10:30 o'clock this morning when an automobile he was driving collided with a truck, driven by Charles Kness of Chadwick, on a narrow bridge on the Pines State Park road about one mile west of Oregon. His body was brought to Oregon where it will be held until Coroner J. C. Atkins of Foreston can impanel a jury for an inquest.

The Chadwick man was reportedly uninjured in the accident, the third on the Pine park road over the week end.

SCORE DIE VIOLENTLY

By The Associated Press

Deaths from violent causes claimed the lives of at least a score of persons in Illinois over the week end, most of them in the Chicago metropolitan area.

The automobile traffic toll in Chicago and suburbs was extremely heavy, 11 fatalities resulting from crashes. Two persons drowned and seven persons died from miscellaneous violence.

Two automobile accidents, one in Chicago and the second in Warrenville, in DuPage county, resulted in the deaths of six persons, including three Warren, Minn., brothers and a husband and wife.

Kermit John Olson, 18, and his brother, Curtis Eugene, 17, were killed and their brother, Harold, 25, died from injuries suffered when their car crashed into a flasher crossing signal of the Chicago, Aurora & Elgin Railroad near the Warrenville station. Miss Prassia Mary Mackinagh of Aurora was seriously injured in the crash.

Axel Zetterlund, 38, and his wife, Beryl, 35, and Mrs. Adeline Vervishar, 25, all of Chicago, were burned to death after a car driven by Mrs. Vervishar's husband, George, crashed into Zetterlund's gas tank and ignited it.

Big Destructive Battle Raging in Smolensk Sector

The War Today!

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Telegraph Special Service)

The Germans declare that their primary objective in the Russian war is the destruction of the Red army rather than the capture of famous cities—a statement which may serve as a measure of excuse for the way the Muscovites have been holding the invaders off, but undoubtedly sums the position up accurately.

We may take this Berlin assertion as a fact because it is so clearly logical that it brooks no dispute. Unless Hitler is able to shatter the entire soviet fighting machine—thereby enforcing a quick cessation of its resistance—his capture of Moscow or Leningrad or Kiev will represent not victory but defeat.

This is true because, as I have pointed out before, a quick and decisive victory is essential for Hitler's purposes. A major war of long duration with Russia must break the reich in the end.

It therefore is with a quickening of the pulse that we see this Titanic struggle entering its fifth week without a decisive victory having been recorded. The nazis claim to be advancing all along the line; the Russians say they are holding the enemy—a contradiction which means that the great front is heaving with firefiness of the battle but that so far as has been disclosed no mortal blow has been struck by either army.

True, the nazis keep saying that the Red forces are on the point of dissolution, but we have been reading that for almost three weeks and the bolsheviks still continue their remarkable resistance against superior strength. One hastens to add that possibly the Germans have paved the way for a Russian collapse, but this is something the invaders still have to demonstrate.

One thing both combatants are agreed upon—the fighting is fierce and bloody, and the destruction of materials is vast. This is of the utmost importance, especially to Hitler. It is precisely because of his lack of supplies of all kinds that he cannot afford a long war with Russia.

The Germans themselves have been emphasizing the destruction of communications behind the Russian line. The nazi air force is reported as causing havoc with railroads and rolling stock, a thousand freight cars having been destroyed in one operation alone. Today, too, we have word of the burning of entire villages by withdrawing Reds.

The point the Germans make is that the bolshevik communications are so shattered that they cannot bring up supplies and reinforcements. If so, that certainly is tough for the Muscovites, but what seems to me to be an equally vital point is that when the Germans destroy the Russian communications they are destroying communications which they themselves will need terribly if they are able to race through to Moscow.

Supposing that Hitler's forces do reach Moscow, but have been unable to destroy the Red army in the process. They will find

Gov. Dwight Green Occupies Pulpit of Episcopal Church; Praises Burns

Springfield, Ill., July 21.—(AP)—Governor Green went into Scotch history for an example of a good citizen and chose the Highland Bard, Robert Burns, who died 154 years ago today, as the subject of a citizenship sermon.

The governor praised Burns in his first pulpit appearance since becoming governor, speaking as the guest of Pastor Jerry Wallace in a program honoring the poet yesterday at Christ Episcopal church.

"His love of country, his tolerance for his fellows and his faith in divine providence were unshakable," Green said of Burns. "Those three beliefs are the very elements upon which good citizenship is based, and to the Bard of Scotland, we can give a nobler title than poet, when we call him a good citizen of the land he loved."

Green quoted from "The Cotter's Saturday Night" that "an honest man's the noblest work of God," and added from another Burns composition "It's comin' yet for a' that, that man to man the world o'er, shall brothers be for a' that," in substantiating:

"Through the philosophy of Robert Burns ran the golden thread of faith—faith in God, faith in the destiny of his country and faith in the good citizenship which would shape it."

Russians Claim to Hold City: War News

(By The Associated Press)

A German military spokesman declared late today that a "big, destructive battle is in progress east of the Stalin line"—presumably in the Smolensk sector guarding Moscow—and other nazi sources reported the annihilation of an entire soviet division in bloody fighting around Mogilev, on the Dnieper river.

Dispatches from Moscow quoted private soviet voices as saying that Smolensk, key city 230 miles from the Russian capital on a Minsk-to-Moscow motor highway, was still in Red army hands despite a German claim to the contrary.

A nazi spokesman compared the situation in the 30-day-old conflict with nazi successes on the western front in June, 1940, after the turning of the French Maginot line.

Meanwhile, striking at Germany's side door in support of the Russian war effort, the British said RAF warplanes would launch the heaviest air raids in history against the reich in the next three months. Attacks on a scale "which will make Coventry look like a pinprick," were predicted.

Corpses Litter Field

British authorities said the RAF's furious aerial counter-offensive in recent days had already destroyed about one-third of Germany's coastal shipping and demolished an entire Focke-Wulf aircraft plant at Bremen.

Authorized quarters in Berlin said that more than 4,000 Russian corpses littered the Mogilev battlefield, and that several thousand Red army troops were taken prisoner.

The unit, described as "completely destroyed," was said to have been organized from the remnants of five other soviet divisions.

The Germans said extremely bad weather was hampering their blitzkrieg style of assault.

Mogilev lies 80 miles southwest of Smolensk, where the Germans have driven a salient to within 230 miles of the soviet capital.

A Reuters (British news agency) dispatch said Moscow had a 45-minute air raid alarm (Continued on Page 6)

Watseka Farmer Is Guilty of Murder of Niece; Verdict

Watseka, Ill., July 21.—(AP)—Life imprisonment was the jury's recommendation for Robert Fiester, 55-year-old farmer who suffered two heart attacks while on trial on a charge of murdering his niece.

The jury deliberated nearly 11 hours before bringing in its verdict of conviction Saturday night. Judge Roscoe C. South, however, withheld formal sentence and granted Defense Attorney Claude Saum 10 days in which to file a motion for a new trial.

There was no evidence of emotion by Fiester when the verdict was read. The ailing farmer, sat in a wheel chair under guard of deputies.

Although Fiester was tried on a charge of murdering his niece, Miss Royalene Hinkle, the prosecution also accused him of killing her fiancé, Lovell Gray, 25. They were found shot to death last March 28 in a bedroom in the farm house in which the three lived.

Three Alternatives

The state contended Fiester shot Miss Hinkle because he was indebted to her financially and had given her a deed to his farm. The agreement provided, however, that the property would revert to him after her death.

The defense theory was that Miss Hinkle was shot by Gray after a quarrel and he then committed suicide. Fiester testified that he had last seen the couple at home on the night of March 27 and on the following morning found their bodies in the bed room.

With the verdict of guilty, the jury of eight women and four men had the alternative of selecting one of three penalties, death, life imprisonment or a minimum term of 14 years in prison.

Here's Guided Tour Along Aviation Production Line

By DEVON FRANCIS

Los Angeles. — (The Special News Service) — In going through an aircraft factory you are likely to come across a pretty girl from Des Moines, Dayton or Danville, threading funny-looking pieces of metal with a wire in an atmosphere which smells like a dentist's office.

The pretty girl is from Des Moines, Dayton or Danville because for months she and hundreds of her sisters have been coming west to seek employment in the burgeoning airplane manufacturing business.

She is preparing parts for an engine—coast aluminum alloys so they won't rust—and she probably hasn't the faintest idea where the parts fit in the completed machine.

It is one of tens of thousands of small operations in the construction of warplanes. In terms of paychecks, they are all expensive.

The president of one of the west coast's important warplane factories, Richard Millar of Vultee Aircraft, Inc., says, "Automobile and airplane manufacture cannot be compared. While we in the aircraft business are developing short-cuts, we have not and cannot achieve true mass production."

Let's begin making an airplane at the point where the things going into it look like what you might purchase across the counter of a hardware store.

Miles From Main Factories
Small parts frequently are made in factories miles away from the main factories on a sub-contract basis. That helps speed production. Precious space in the main factories can be devoted to other operations.

As we progress along the production line, the small parts are fitted together to become sub-assemblies.

A typical sub-assembly is the tail group of an airplane. That includes the fin, which looks like the dorsal fin on a fish, the rudder, the horizontal stabilizer or tail-plane, and the elevators which are hinged to the tailplane.

Further along the production line we come to the body-mating jigs. A jig is a metal framework on which airplane parts are fashioned to give them uniformity. The main portion of the fuselage will be attached to inner wing sections in the body-maters.

The fuselage has been made in halves. Each half looks like half a pea pod. Bolted and riveted together, they make a cylinder, conical at one end.

Even after the plane has been put together, work must be done inside the booms. Since it is a narrow squeeze for an average-size man to get into a boom, the Lockheed company hired a mid-gut for the job.

Fabricated Separately

Wings are not made in one piece. Outer wing panels are fabricated separately from the inner wings, and the two parts are bolted and riveted together.

Once we have body-mated the inner wing sections and the fuselage, we are ready to put our airplane into an overhead conveyor system.

The conveyor system represents the nearest approach of the aircraft industry to the automobile industry's on-line production methods.

In Detroit visitors to automobile factories regularly lose 25-cent pieces betting that bodies of a certain color won't arrive on time at an assembly point on the production line to meet car frames and fenders of the same color.

A visitor at the Vultee plant at Downey, Calif., can lose money just as easily betting that an engine on the conveyor belt will arrive at the installation point ahead of, or behind, the plane for which it is intended.

When an airplane leaves the overhead conveyor line, it is most often put on wheeled jigs. Then the outer wing panels and engines are installed, and finally the nose section is attached.

The thousands of parts begin to look like an airplane.

Finishing touches and final inspections are applied in final assembly. Signs show visitors away. Except for the workmen and officials immediately involved, this is a no man's land.

Even in the completed stage,

Lew Fields, Famous Stage Star, is Dead

Beverly Hills, Calif., July 21. — (AP) — Lew Fields, half of the famous vaudeville comedy team of Weber & Fields, is dead.

His life-time partner, Joe Weber, at his bedside commented sadly:

"It's like losing my right arm. We've grown up together. He was everything to me."

The funeral services will be held today.

Fields, 74, became ill Thursday and died yesterday. The girl-shows which he and Weber staged and starred in often featured noted players in the day.

Lillian Russell, David Warfield, DeWolf Hopper, Fay Templeton and Willie Collier were among the stage figures who appeared in Weber-Fields comedies.

Fields was born Lewis Maurice Fields. He and Weber began their famous comedy routine in New York in 1876 when they were little boys. Fields was only nine.

Their first appearance together were in juvenile Dutch sketches at small variety theaters. In 1885, they formed their own company.

In 1896, they became proprietors of the famous Weber & Fields Music Halls in New York which, for years, was one of the gay spots of Broadway.

OPERA RECORDS BROKEN
St. Louis — (AP) — Attendance records for the Municipal Opera were broken last night when 11,107 persons jammed the open air theater for the final presentation of "Trene". Crowds the last two performances were identical, boosting the week's gate to 73,361 — largest in the 23-year history of the opera.

Guests last week of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Feezer were Miss Ethel Ludwick, Foster Wise, who spent several days in Mount Morris before going to Rockford to spend the week end with relatives.

On Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mulder of Morrison, Ia. and daughter, Miss Catherine Mulder of Marshalltown joined the Feezers and the party went into Chicago Sunday to see the Sox double-header. The Mulders are cousins of Mr. Feezer.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kleffer and daughter, Rosemary, left Saturday for a three week's vacation trip to the Black Hills and Yellowstone National Park.

Miss Frances Schaar, who just completed her year as head of the physical education department at the Mary Hardin Baylor college for girls at Belton, Texas, is returning to Mexico City with friends before returning to Mount Morris.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shogquist of Iowa were guests this week in the Ivan and Ed Rothermel homes. On Friday Mrs. Ed Rothermel accompanied the Shogquists to Minneapolis where she will visit her sister, Mrs. Ella Sickler and mother, Mrs. Harry Darling.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Otis were the former's mother, Mrs. Emma Otis and cousin and wife, Mr. and Mrs. C. Glen Hall of Chicago.

The past commander club of the American Legion had a scramble supper Friday evening at the Walter Waddelow home.

Present were the Messrs and Misses Frank Hilger, Charles Edison, Cyril Avey, Frank Aufderbeck, John Stouffer, Oregon, C. J. Price, Hobart Smith, Hubert Knodel, Bryant Stigers and D. S. Sharer.

Cold Hands Aren't Actually Any Sign of a Warm Heart

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

New York. — (The Special News Service) — Cold hands, traditionally called the sign of a warm heart, are more often the danger sign of tension and anxiety.

About nine out of every 10 persons show this signal, fingers growing cold with emotion, when the air temperature is 70 or above.

These are recent scientific findings, and they explain some of the ill feelings afflicting a public torn with war fears and other emotions.

The observations were made on 47 persons at the New York hospital and Cornell university medical college. The results are described by Bela Mittleman, M. D., and Harold G. Wolff, M.D., in Psychopathic Medicine.

In all except two or three persons, finger temperatures dropped notably when they talked about things troubling them. The drops were 10 to 24 degrees fahrenheit.

Drop of 21 Degrees

A drop of 21 degrees was recorded in the fingers of a woman in her twenties, who merely sat in the same room with a physician whom she did not like. There was no conversation.

Yet, when she sat in the same room, again in silence, but with a physician whom she liked, there was no change in temperatures. One of the experimenters remarked that this is an example backing up the common belief, both of laymen and doctors, that you are more likely to recover from illness, or get well more quickly, with a doctor whom you like and trust, and who makes you feel secure.

"Suppose," he said, "that this woman had gone to a physician for a blood pressure examination. She probably would have had a higher pressure with the physician she did not like, and a lower one with the other."

Thoughts about a nagging relative dropped another person's fingers 24 degrees. These finger changes are not always merely spectacular little events with no real importance. In this person's case, for example, it required more effort to do ordinary tasks while emotions were aroused to the finger-cooling degree.

Dr. Wolff said, "The fact that a person's fingers are cold when they are nervous is a sign of a warm heart."

VISITORS FROM OUT OF TOWN PROVIDE WELCOME INCENTIVE FOR SUMMER PARTY-GIVING

The presence of Miss Marian Meyer of West Salem, Wis., and Miss Barbara Hodapp of Willmar, Minn., roommates of two Dixon students at Carleton college, the Misses Alice Hintz and Evelyn Worsley, prompted more social activity last week than has been seen here in some time.

On Friday evening, some 50 young collegians and other friends were attending a semi-formal dancing party given by Alice in the Loveland Community House auditorium in courtesy to Marian. Other out of town guests included two of Alice's cousins, Robert and Donald Anderson of Clinton, Iowa, who were escorting Miss Alice Hobart and Miss Dorothy Sites, also of Clinton, Evelyn's houseguest, and the latter's escort, John Bosshard of Bangor, Wis. John, a summer student at the University of Wisconsin in Madison, spent the week end here as the guest of Leland Shoaf, Jr., another Wisconsin student.

Preceding the dance, Nan Warner was hostess to several of the group at her home on East Everett street. Patrons and patronesses for this merry mid-summer dance included Alice's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hintz, and Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Schrock. Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Worsley, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Warner, Mrs. Myrtle Bishop's orchestra played for dancing from 9 o'clock until midnight.

On Tuesday evening, Evelyn entertained at dinner and bridge for her roommate, with Marian and another Carleton young woman, Miss Priscilla Gitz of Freeport, as out of town guests. The Worsleys, Evelyn, and Barbara spent Wednesday and Thursday in Chicago, and on Saturday, Betty Reilly, who is at home for the summer recess from St. Catherine's in St. Paul, was hostess at luncheon, complimenting Barbara.

Thursday noon saw Mrs. Robert Warner receiving luncheon guests at The Landmark tea room in Grand Detour, with Alice's roommate as guest of honor. Marian left Saturday morning for her brother's home in Madison, and Evelyn saw Barbara off for her northern home, later in the day.

WOMEN GOLFERS ANNOUNCE PLANS FOR WEEK'S PLAY

Women golfers of the Dixon Country club and visiting links-women from several other surrounding cities will be guests of the Rock River club at Sterling on Wednesday. Nine o'clock has been announced as the teeing-off hour.

Because of the out of town match on Wednesday, local golfers are postponing their weekly ladies' day play until Friday.

Members of the supper group are planning their weekly match for Wednesday evening, according to Miss Helen Krug, July chairman.

OTIS EASTMANS ARE HONORED

Eighty neighbors and friends gathered one evening recently at the Herbert Schultz home for a surprise post-nuptial courtesy, honoring Mr. and Mrs. Otis Eastman, upon their return from a wedding trip to Yellowstone national park. Mrs. Eastman is the former Miss Irene Schultz. An occasional chair was presented to the bridal pair.

HOUSEHOLD CLUB

Members of the Dixon Household club were entertained recently at the home of Mrs. Clifford Clymer. The program included: Song, "The Voice in the Old Village Choir"; roll call, "Why I Like Picnics"; exchange of birthday gifts; and games. Mrs. Frank Keane, Mrs. Edward Murray and Mrs. John Bell were fortunate in the contests, which were followed by refreshments.

Mrs. Bernell Sanford is to be the August hostess.

AT GRAND DETOUR

Attorney and Mrs. Clyde Shorey of Oak Park and three children spent the week end at their country home near Grand Detour. The Shoreys' sons, Everett and William, and their daughter, Betty, who has been attending an eastern school, will enter Wellesley.

Mr. Shorey is a well-known Chicago attorney.

CHICAGO GUESTS

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Hallgren of Chicago returned to their home last evening, after visiting here since Friday as guests of Mrs. Hallgren's sister, Mrs. S. M. Mortar.

CLASS MEMBERS ARE ENTERTAINED

Following Sunday morning services at the First Christian church, 40 Progressive class members and their guests were enjoying a baked ham picnic dinner at the Don Stauffer home. Mr. and Mrs. Leo Miles were co-hosts with the Stauffers.

A brief business meeting was followed by an afternoon of visiting, and refreshments of home made ice cream and cake.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE

Members of the United Workers class of the First Baptist Sunday school gathered recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Helin, 1008 North Avery, for a surprise celebration honoring Mr. Helin's birthday anniversary. Friday was also the Helins' fourth wedding anniversary.

Games were the evening's pastime, with refreshments following. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rice, Mr. and Mrs. John Russell, Mr. and Mrs. Norris Paulhill, Mr. and Mrs. Orrin Lovin, Mr. and Mrs. Lyndal Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brainerd, Russell Hicks, and Mrs. L. Lorentzen of Scranton, Iowa.

OPM Plans Action to Deal With Newspaper Situations

Washington, July 21—(AP)—The Office of Production Management foreseeing a shortage of transportation facilities for newspaper shipments, intends shortly to establish a subcommittee of the pulp and paper defense advisory committee to deal with the problem, an OPM official said today.

Rail transportation is not yet seriously lacking, said C. W. Boyce, head of OPM's paper and pulp section but is expected to become "rather serious" as rail cargo facilities become congested with defense shipments.

In response to an inquiry whether a priority order might be issued for the transportation of newspaper, Boyce said the OPM would "take whatever action is necessary to insure deliveries." The OPM priority division, however, said no action of this sort was now contemplated.

Already a serious shortage of ships exists for water transportation of newspaper and pulp wood from Canada, Boyce said, and it was assumed that the contemplated industry subcommittee would tackle this problem first.

The industry is now nominating representatives to meet and advise with OPM on pulp and paper problems. Three 12-member committees are being set up, one for producers, one for the makers of boxes, tissues and other converted pulp products, and one for the graphic arts industry representing the publishing industry. The pulp and paper makers met last week, the converters met tomorrow in Washington, and the graphic arts division meet here on July 29.

Representatives from each of these three groups will be chosen to make up the industry advisory committee for the entire industry.

Air Stewardess

Betty Lowry

Among new stewardesses taking to the air from United Air Lines' school for stewardesses in Chicago is a Dixon high school graduate, Miss Betty Lowry, 22, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Lowry of Grand Detour.

Born in Pulaski, N. Y., Miss Lowry moved to Dixon as a child and was graduated from Dixon high school. She was employed in the office of the Brown Shoe company for two years, then decided on a nurse's career. She completed her nurse's training at West Suburban hospital at Oak Park in 1940, and assisted in supervising the hospital's medical division until submitting her application to United Air Lines.

Miss Lowry is one of more than 200 stewardesses now employed on the coast-to-coast and Pacific coast routes of United Air Lines. In that capacity, she will serve full-course meals aloft, care for children, point out sights of interest, answer questions and otherwise assist in adding pleasure and comfort to the trips of her passengers.

Miss Lowry, who visited her parents in Grand Detour a week ago, is five feet, three inches tall, weighs 106 pounds, has black hair and blue eyes. Her hobbies are swimming and tennis.

Churchill Shakes Up Cabinet Again

London, July 21—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill revised his government today for a third time since May 2, dispatching Alfred Duff-Cooper to the Far East as a special war coordinator for the cabinet and naming Brendan Bracken minister of information in his stead.

Bracken, who has been Churchill's parliamentary private secretary, is the fourth man since the start of the war to hold the information portfolio—a post often referred to as "the graveyard of ministerial reputations" because its occupants have been the targets of such sharp criticism.

Cooper—51-year-old Conservative who resigned as Prime Minister Chamberlain's First Lord of the Admiralty because he disapproved of his appeasement policy—was believed headed for Singapore, potential hot-spot if Japan should attempt an off-predicted southward thrust.

Other appointments included: Edwin Duncan Sandys, 31, Churchill's son-in-law, financial secretary of the war office.

Richard Kidston Law, formerly a newspaperman in the United States, parliamentary undersecretary of state for the foreign office.

The Phony Choice

Many Americans, consciously or unconsciously, are letting their view of world events be swayed by a question:

"Well, which would you rather be under, after all, communism or fascism?" And then, after surveying this shuddery choice, they admit that the balance falls ever so tremulously toward one or the other, and orient all their thinking along such a line.

It is a phony question. The automatic answer which should swell up into a crescendo so loud as to drown out the question itself, is "Neither!"

To put any such choice up to the American people, even to put it to ourselves in our secret hearts, is to get "off the beam" completely. Our whole effort is concentrated today on avoiding the necessity of making any such choice.

The American people have been making for 20 years a convincing demonstration that they want no part of either totalitarian system. That one might in some hypothetical case be a millionth part preferable to the other simply has nothing to do with today's realities.

The Russian system has maintained, ever since the Revolution, an international organization devoted to propagandizing and "boring from within" in the interest of supplanting all established governments with their system. There is no doubt of that, but despite favorable conditions, their progress in shaping America to their way is close to nil.

Though fascism began 20 years ago as a counter-irritant to communism, its German manifestation has only the minutest following in the United States, through this methods have been equally contemptible.

The horrors of a fascist or a communist Europe are now paraded before us. If Nazi Germany wins this war over a prostrate England, there can be no doubt that all Europe will be fascist. But if Russia and Britain win together, though some of Europe might be engulfed by Russia in communism, England and other centers of freedom would remain. How they might fare with a bigger and broader communism on the continent one cannot know, but one can be pretty sure that they would have a chance to rebuild freedom, whereas a Nazi victory means an immediate and total blackout, with no chance for freedom at all.

The American people are not interested in choosing between communism and fascism in splitting ideological hairs from twin dogs. The American people are interested in freedom, and in a free world in which peoples may develop such political and social institutions as seem to them good.

MURDER IN CONVOY

BY A. W. O'BRIEN

COPYRIGHT, 1941.
NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY, Ties is buried at sea the next day. Joan tries to comfort Rollins for the loss of his old friend. Later, Lieutenant Miles questions Rollins further as to whether he was alone when he saw Ties just before the murder. That night, Rollins looks out of his porthole, sees a light. As he prepares to investigate, he hears a rifle shot, followed immediately by the lifeboat alarm.

STRUGGLE IN THE PASSAGE

CHAPTER VII

AUTOMATICALLY, Lieutenant Rollins shifted mental gears as the emergency gong sounded. Army discipline went to work. He had an official post to assume at Lifeboat Station 15, and everything else became secondary. Regretfully he shoved the revolver back into his pocket, but the thought flashed through his mind that it didn't matter much because whoever had flashed the light would be swallowed up in the men flooding the decks.

Hurriedly he slipped into his trousers, donned a balacava, slung on his shoulder bag and gas mask, and dashed into the corridor. Except for a puffing sentry, he was alone; but within a few seconds other officers were pouring from their cabins, and Rollins marveled at the general coolness. "The captain wouldn't think that a lifeboat alarm in the dead of night was an everyday occurrence in the lives of these men.

Outside it was pitchblack, and cold spray filled the night. Murky figures bumped one another as they passed. Rollins walked quickly with both hands outstretched to prevent himself from crashing headlong into others before he reached Lifeboat Station 15.

His sergeant was only seconds behind and breathing heavily from the run upstairs with heavy equipment.

"What's up, Sir?" he gasped. "I didn't feel any explosion and the ship's whistle isn't blowing the regulation blasts."

Rollins had been thinking along the same lines. "Perhaps it's only a drill. Sergeant. Don't have the men climb into the boat yet. It's a bit dangerous with the ship heaving around and the planking wet. Wait until there is further cause for alarm."

"Very well, Sir!"

Within two minutes more, the full complement of men for Lifeboat Station 15 was on hand and standing in position, ready to hop into the boat on order. Members of the ship's crew stood by the lowering apparatus.

After the first wave of excitement, the men standing in the black-shrouded night began to grumble in approved soldier fashion.

THEY stood there for a full half hour before the adjutant, heavily clothed, came around. "Dismiss your station, Lieutenant," he ordered. "The captain doesn't wish to sound the regular dismiss signal on the ship's whistle, because it might alarm the other ships."

He turned to the men and shrugged in the darkness. "You heard him, my hardies—on your way and pleasant dreams!" He smiled as he heard them shuffling off muttering complaints about drill-crazy O. C.'s and the army system in general. They had really enjoyed the bit of excitement but didn't want to show it. There was no talk about rifle shots. Rollins didn't stop to chat but went directly into the cabin. From the folds of the sweater in the cupboard drawer, he extracted the bottle and poured himself a stiff shot of brandy. It sent a glow of warmth through him.

As he lighted a cigaret, Greg noticed on his wrist watch that it was a few minutes after 1 o'clock. They had been on deck for about half an hour . . . a few minutes previously he had seen the light on the deck . . . that would make it about 12:30. There was something familiar about that time . . . things seemed to happen regularly at 12:30 or thereabouts.

Tonight—the unexplained lifeboat alarm.

Last night—the murder of Ties.

The night before—Rollins frowned—he had seen the light on the deck and found Joan there,

In Midst of War—Peace

Men are meeting in Washington who may hold the internal peace of the Western Hemisphere in their hands. Millions of people in both North and South America are hoping that they will be able to work out a formula to avert war between Peru and Ecuador.

It is to the interest not only of the Peruvian and Ecuadorian peoples themselves, but to the peoples of all the Americas, that war be avoided. There is enough war in the world today without having the peoples of the Western Hemisphere at each other's throats. They are all sufficiently affected by the sweep of the Second World War, without warring among themselves.

The average North American will do well to take no contemptuous tone toward this border dispute which has caused ill-feeling between Ecuador and Peru for 100 years—it will not do to say, "A stupid row over a few miles of jungle!" and let it go at that.

To Peruvians and Ecuadorians, the fate of the vast interior territory of the Oriente is of utmost importance. It lies in the over-the-mountains hinterland of both; it is the outlet to the headwaters of the Amazon; it is potentially rich. Danzig was not so important to Germany as the Oriente to both these countries.

The United States itself came to the verge of war with Great Britain over our own northwest boundary at a time when it must have seemed to any European a stupid dispute over an untrodden wilderness.

Yet because cooler heads prevailed than the ones which were shouting "Fifty-four Forty or Fight!" the border was amicably adjusted, and neither country has ever regretted it.

That is the Western Hemisphere way, and while it is true that the United States and many other American countries have not always adhered to it, that is the direction, that is the goal.

Only last April Colombia and Venezuela adjusted a border dispute as old as that which now shakes Ecuador and Peru, and did it amicably. Panama and Costa Rica settled in the same month the status of a 30,000-acre disputed tract. It can be done.

We hope that the United States and other American powers which have an interest in peace within the hemisphere will be able to devise formulas by which these two South American countries, both of which are on unusually friendly terms with the United States, will be able to adjust their dispute without shedding more blood in a world which is already saturated with the blood of unoffending men.

Never Too Late

It's never too late to do a good thing. Sometimes it's too late to achieve maximum good by the good act. Nevertheless, better late than never.

Jacob Nabel feels that way. He's applying for American citizenship, though he's 106 years old. Nabel came to Cleveland in 1861, fought with the Union army, was wounded, returned, and lived in the United States until, at 106, he has lived here longer than most people who are native. Now he wants to become a citizen.

Well, why not? He reads without glasses, walks, drinks, eats, and is as chipper as a sparrow under a sprinkler on a hot day. Personally, we think he's taking the step not a day too soon. After all, he has the future to consider.

Circus Fans Assn. Meets in Capital; Has 400 Members

Convention May Parade To Statehouse to Pay Green Respects

Springfield, Ill., July 21—(AP)—Are you one of those people who roll out of bed at 4 a. m. to watch the circus come to town?

Do you like to toss peanuts to the monkeys? Or listen open-mouthed to the blandishments of the barkers along a candy midway? Or hold your breath during the daring-dazzling death-defying leap for life?

If you get that old thrill at the sight of the big top then you'd be right at home in Springfield, where the Circus Fans are having their national convention. About 150 of them are swapping tales of the days when they carried water for the elephants and had crushes on the lady bareback riders.

The convention will end tomorrow night with the customary trip to the circus—this year it's the Cole Brothers show—followed by an entertainment for the performers by the Koo Koo club, the clowning branch of the Circus Fans Association.

"All of us love the circus and this is the best way we can keep it alive—by encouraging circus fans all over the nation," explained William H. Judd, amiable New Britain, Conn., bank president who is president of the Circus Fans Association.

One of the most ardent circus fans is another Connecticut banker, William L. Montague of West Hartford, who retired several years ago and spends most of his time following the circus. He is the eastern vice-president of the association.

400 Card-Carrying Members
Just to assure you that all circus fans aren't Connecticut bankers, Montague says there are 400 card-carrying members, both men and women, in all parts of the country. Montague finds that undertakers are more heavily represented among the circus fans than any other occupation.

"Maybe it takes their minds off their work," he adds.

A circus fan since he was 11 years old, Montague is a little saddened by the decline of the circus since the World war but thinks it is coming back.

"Why, America wouldn't be America without the circus," he asserted. "And right now we need the circus to keep us from taking the world too seriously. People relax and laugh at the circus. You won't find any circus fans jumping out of 12th story windows."

The saddest blow to the convention of Circus Fans came when it was learned there won't be a parade when the circus arrives tomorrow.

The fans, however, are thinking of organizing a parade of their own by borrowing some elephants and maybe a band and parading up to the Illinois Statehouse to pay a visit on Governor Dwight H. Green.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON
(Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc., reproduction in whole or in part strictly prohibited.)

Washington, July 21—One new deal figure is pre-empting the ring or eligible successors to Mr. Roosevelt in 1944. His prominence is not yet evident to the public at large, but all the new dealers can see him. For while Vice-President Henry Wallace has not kissed any babies (except for one or two beauty queens who were lightly osculated for the cameras) he is becoming vice-president in fact as well as name, the first holder of that office ever to do so in my memory.

Wherever the guiding thinkers of the administration are gathered in conference, you will there find Wallace. Se sits in with the economic Wallaces. He sits in with the economic Wallaces. He attends the important defense conferences. He even had a price fixing plan, which was known inside as "The Wallace Plan", although swiftly developing circumstances kept it from becoming the formula that the new dealers finally decided to endorse.

Significantly also, Wallace is devoting himself to studying the post-war economic problems and ways to meet them. It is a good subject for any man who expects to participate in the 1944 debate. The war may be over then.

Wallace also has established friendly contacts with the politicians of the party in the senate and is thus accumulating both economic and political back-ground he lacked when his activity was restricted to leadership of the agriculture department.

But perhaps the most convincing evidence of Wallace's heir appearance, is the fact that the new dealers are rallying around him as the man to take over singleheaded direction of the defense setup. Roosevelt has shied away from granting so much power to one man who might run away with the ball. The White House retinue has no such fears concerning Wallace, whom they would expect to continue as vice president while handling the job.

There was a time in the last election campaign when administration politicians doubted Wallace's political attitude. There were evidences that Roosevelt was displeased with him in some personal respect.

Wallace apparently has worked himself out of that hole.

The only other Democrat whose lightning rod is visible yet is the social securist Paul McNutt. Last time McNutt had trouble with labor. His speeches since then have had the labor slant. Many of his associates have been worked into important positions around in the defense setup, most prominent being Wayne Coy, now FDR's own representative in the defense organization as head of OEM.

There is, and always has been minor talk among the new dealers about Supreme Court Justice Douglas. If he resigns to take over the defense setup, he is the only one aside from Wallace whose name is being authoritatively mentioned; he might then be able to distinguish himself in the manner considered necessary to his candidacy.

Until that invitation comes from the White House, however, his opportunities will remain in the conversation category.

No talk of a fourth term has been heard in any quarter. New dealers consider the suggestion facetious.

A very live prospect is already discernable that the Democratic isolationist Senator Wheeler (working closely to the Republican CIO director, ex-officio, John Lewis) will be an opponent at the 1944 candidates. But his unorthodox course is likely to lead him toward a third independent party, rather than to the top of the Democrat-new deal alliance.

Funeral services were held in the Mortenson home Sunday afternoon at 2:30. Rev. Birger Dahl, pastor of Mendota Methodist church officiated. Burial was in Restland cemetery.

Mr. Mortenson was instantly killed about 9:30 a. m. Friday when a car driven by Edward Ansteth and the truck driven by George Whitmore, Jr., and Mr. Mortenson crashed on a gravel road about a mile south of Sublette.

Mr. Ansteth emerged from the accident with minor injuries. Mr.

Rural Carriers of Illinois Will Hold Convention in Dixon

This City Picked For 1942 Meeting of Letter Carriers

The Illinois Rural Letter Carriers Association in annual convention at Springfield last week, voted to hold their 1942 annual meeting in Dixon. Thomas L. Jordan, member of the rural carrier force at the Dixon post office, past president of the association and for the past seven years an officer of the organization, extended the invitation to gather in Dixon next year. Springfield and Peoria were strong contenders for the convention honors.

Dixon was selected as the 1942 state convention city following a nomination speech by C. A. Watson of Franklin Grove, secretary of the Lee county association. Van Andreas of Sterling, seconded the selection, and explained the facilities available at the Loveland Community House for the entertainment of conventions, and the beautiful scenery to be enjoyed in this locality. Mrs. Thomas L. Jordan and Mrs. C. A. Watson were the active ladies of the Lee county auxiliary who, during the three day session, worked consistently to secure the 1942 meeting for Dixon.

C. of C. Sends Invitation

Earl Pierce and T. L. Jordan conducted the campaign for support of Dixon as next year's convention city from the floor at the sessions. President Walter Knack of the Chamber of Commerce in a telegram to the convention, extended an invitation to meet in this city next year and assured the rural letter carriers of Illinois and their ladies, the hospitality of Dixon's citizenry on this occasion.

Dixon, Peoria and Springfield contested for the meeting next year on the convention floor, this city being favored in three ballots cast to determine the meeting place. Springfield withdrew on the third ballot, when Dixon was given 173 votes against 168 for Peoria. The state association has a membership of 1,900 rural carriers and about 600 are expected to attend the annual meeting here in July, 1942, which will last through three days. Officers of the national organization will also be in attendance at the sessions.

JOHN BARTH

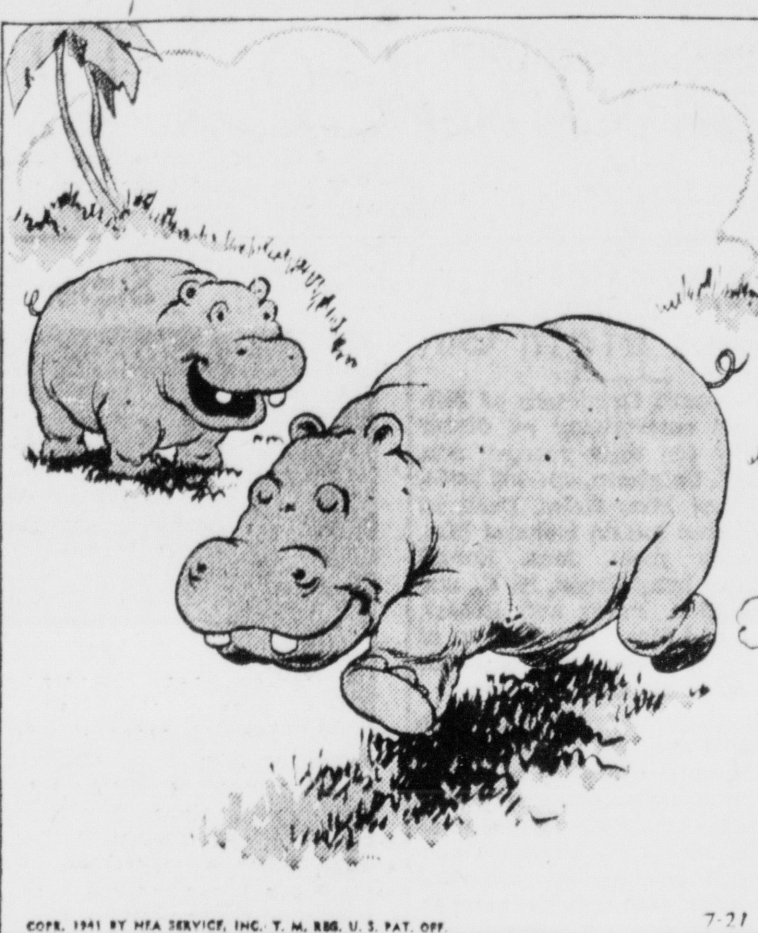

(Telegraph Special Service)
Mendota, Ill., July 21—John Barth, 74, suffered a stroke of paralysis Tuesday, July 15th, and died Thursday at 5:45 p. m. in his home, 1009 Third avenue.

Mr. Barth, the second oldest of a family of ten children, was the son of the late Mathew and Margaret Barth and was born on a farm northwest of Mendota, August 13, 1866. He farmed near Mendota in his early youth and later moved to Nebraska where on December 11, 1889 in Clay Center, Neb., he was married to Miss Mary Richert. Mr. and Mrs. Barth returned to Mendota in 1894 and had made his home here since.

Survivors are his widow, one son J. Harvey Barth, Mendota, a daughter, Mrs. Vera Dassow and one grandson, Clifton Beryl Dassow, Indianapolis, Ind.; three sisters, Mrs. Mary Ott, Ottawa; Mrs. George Otterbach, Earlville, and Mrs. Katherine McFreely, Augusta, Ga. Three brothers, C. J. Barth, Oak Park, Fred C. Barth, Fremont, Neb., and Edward M. Barth, Marysville, Calif. Two brothers and a sister preceded him in death.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 in the Barth home. Rev. W. J. Frost officiated. Burial was made in Restland cemetery.

Cardinals Back on Home Lot, Red Hot and Raring To Go

Southworth's Boys May Assume Control of League's Doings

The St. Louis Cardinals are on their way back west today to open a long home stand against the eastern clubs, and there is a good chance they will take complete charge of the National League race before they are again routed out of Sportsman's Park.

They left that impression as they completed a smashing tour of the seaboard with a double defeat of the Boston Braves yesterday by scores of 4 to 2 and 7 to 3. That made it seven victories in their past nine games, indicating that Billy Southworth's boys finally were rolling.

The Cards are playing breath-taking, hell-for-leather baseball, taking all sorts of chances and running wild on the paths. Rival clubs are talking more about that than they are about the team's hitting.

Brooklyn, by doing no better than breaking even against Pittsburgh yesterday, saw its lead sliced to a game and a half, with a long road trip ahead. The Dodgers have played only 500 ball in their past 10 contests at home, and their pitching staff is showing alarming signs of falling apart.

Wyatt Loses Again

Whit Wyatt, the team's ace, lost his third straight start when the Pirates beat him 5 to 1, in the nightcap. Fred Fitzsimmons, reliable veteran, was struck on the arm by a batted ball and forced to retire early in the first tilt, which Curt Davis went on to win, 5 to 1. Kirby Higbe, another of the Dodgers' "big three," is in a hospital with a bad appendix and will not accompany the club west.

The Cincinnati Reds, who haven't yet lost hope of winning their third straight flag, climbed within two percentage points of third place by thumping the Phillies twice, 7 to 1 and 3 to 2. Paul Derringer broke a five-game losing streak in the first, in which he left 12 Philadelphia stranded.

The New York Giants won the first from Chicago, 7 to 5. Carl Hubbell scoring his ninth victory, but the Cubs came back to take the second, 7 to 4, behind Verne Olsen.

Spectacular Game

In the most spectacular game of a heavy day, the Yankees exploded for six runs in the 17th inning to win a 12 to 6 decision over Detroit at Briggs Stadium. Deadlocked 6-6 at the end of nine frames, they battled four hours and five minutes before the blow-off.

Included in the Yankees' winning assault on Al Epton and Johnny Gorsica were home runs by Charley Keller and Tom Henrich and doubles by Johnny Sturm, Red Kofie and Joe DiMaggio. DiMaggio previously had clouted a home run and a pair of doubles.

The hard-won victory increased the Yankees' lead to seven full games over the Cleveland Indians who divided a brace with Washington. The Senators beat them, 8 to 4, in the first behind Steve Sundra, but a rash of errors in the late innings by the Washington infield enabled the Indians to take the second, 5 to 1.

The St. Louis Browns swept their second double-header in two days over Boston's diving Red Sox, 6 to 3 and 10 to 0. Bob Muncriffs' shutout of the Sox in the nightcap was only the second they have suffered all season. George McQuinn had a gay day of it at bat for the Browns, busting three homers and two singles.

Veteran Ted Lyons pitched Chicago's White Sox to a 2 to 1 win in their first bout with the Philadelphia Athletics, but the A's came back to win the second, 4 to 1, in 13 innings. Benny McCoy's deep fly drove across the winning run.

Eureka Beats Rockford in Junior Legion Game

East St. Louis, Ill., July 21.—(AP)—The Illinois American Legion junior baseball championship will be decided next Saturday when Eureka and Berwyn clash at Kewanee.

Although out 9 to 8 and outplayed in the field, a scrappy Eureka team qualified for the title round by defeating Rockford, 9 to 6, here Sunday in the deciding game of the downstate tournament.

The victors scored seven runs in the sixth inning to break a 2-2 tie.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Joe DiMaggio, Yankees.—Hit home run and three doubles in 17th inning victory over Detroit.

George McQuinn, Browns.—His three homers featured double victory over Red Sox.

Ted Lyons, White Sox.—Pitched six-hit victory over A's in first half of double header.

Jeff Heath, Indians.—Pounded double and two singles in second game to help gain even break with Washington.

Johnny Mize, Cardinals.—Handled 33 chances perfectly at first base in double victory over the Braves.

John Lanning, Pirates.—Beat league-leading Dodgers, 5-1, in nightcap. Joe Medwick's 3-run homer robbing him of shutout.

Babe Dahlgren, Cubs.—Hit home run and four singles in split double-header with Giants.

Paul Derringer, Reds.—Veteran left 12 runners stranded in beating Pauls 7 to 1, in first game.

Tennis Fans Check in for First Grass Courts Tournament

Seabright, N. J., July 21.—(AP)—As the tennis nomads checked in today for the first big grass court tournament of the year, there were more timely questions than you could shake a quiz kid at.

Of chief concern were (A) Frankie Parker's forehead, (B) Don McNeill's slump and (C) Bobby Riggs' comeback.

The record-book protests there should be no question about Parker's new starboard stroke. The Altadena (Calif.) ace has been cleaning up all summer, and put the finishing touches to the job yesterday by beating Jackie Kramer and Ladislav Hecht to win the New York state title, his sixth victory on clay.

The forehead had considerable starch in it against both Kramer, who with Ted Schroeder will defend the doubles title here, and Hecht, who tops the foreign seeded contingent of four. McNeill is seeded No. 1 here despite the fact he hasn't won a tournament all year. Riggs ranked second ahead of Parker and Frank Kovacs, has almost a clean slate as he takes his first serious step toward regaining the U. S. crown he lost to McNeill in 1940. If there's a dark horse in the lineup, he may be it.

Speculation concerning such lads as Wayne Sabin and Kovacs adds further interest to the picture, which is heightened even more by the fact that women swing back into competition here.

Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke heads the women's seeded group of four, followed by Helen Jacobs, a former Seabright winner; Dorothy May Bunday, and Virginia Wolfenden.

McNeill will have to be in form to reach the final. In his half of the draw, besides Parker, are Frank Shields, Sidney Wood, Gene Mako, Seymour Greenberg, Sabin, Ted Olewine and the two South American stars, Francisco Segura and Eduardo Buse.

Evansville Makes No Headway in Three Eye

(By The Associated Press)

Evansville made no headway last night in its effort to widen the gap between first and second places in the Three Eye League.

The Bees whacked second place Cedar Rapids, 7 to 2, in the first game of a double-header, but the Raiders took the 10-inning nightcap, 9 to 8. The Bees tied the score with three runs in the ninth, but yielded the vital tally in the last of the 10th. The even split left the two teams still only a game apart.

Madison knocked Springfield over twice with the two well-pitched games, 6 to 3, and 4 to 0. Bill Hendrix gave up seven runs in the first game and Leon Balser four in the nightcap.

Decatur and Clinton swapped victories in their twin bill. Clinton captured the seven-inning encounter, 6 to 5, but bowed in the longer contest, 6 to 2. Waterloo shut out Moline, 2 to 0, on Winters' three-hitter after Moline had won the first game, 13 to 10.

Miss Renett Yanke Wins Senior Archery Honors

Chicago, July 21.—(AP)—Miss Renett Yanke successfully defended her title as senior women's champion archer of Illinois in two days of competition sponsored by the Illinois Archery Association.

The Chicago woman was tied with Miss Minerva Lanza of Chicago in points—each with 1,858—but she was awarded the championship by officials on the basis of her better long distance shots.

Miss Myrtle McIntosh of Geneva, Ill., placed third with 1,847 points. Henry Evers of Chicago captured the senior men's title with 2,063 points, 18 points more than garnered by Marvin Schmidt of Chicago. Dewey Thorsen of Geneva, was third with 1,948.

Need Flip of Coin To Decide Winner of Play in Flag Event

Plum Hollow Flag Race Proves Popular With Participants

The flag race at Plum Hollow proved very interesting as forty-nine members participated yesterday and there were flags showing up on the No. 9 green, No. 1 fairway and No. 1 and No. 2 greens to show the efforts of stretching the number of strokes given to each player into the farthest distance possible. Eleven players finished the 18 holes in the exact number of strokes allotted them.

The unusual part of the event was that three players, Don Bush, Charles Cramer and Fred Hoffmann, sank their putts on the 3 green which was their 21st hole, to use up all of their strokes. It was necessary to flip a coin to determine the winner. Don Bush called the coin and won the first place prize of a weather-proof sports jacket. Charles Cramer had the next best luck and won three golf balls. Fred Hoffmann garnered third prize with two golf balls and Fred really earned placing in the prizes by shooting a sizzling 78.

The lowest score of the day was made by Bill Witzleb who shot a 68 which equaled the course record and earned himself a sport shirt. Bill also set a course record for nine holes by shooting a 32 on the first nine.

There was also a prize for the member who got the least distance for the number of strokes allotted and this prize went to Harold Glesner of Eldora. The scores of the other players were as follows:

Big Pebble, Gold Cup Winner; Shipped East

Los Angeles, July 21.—(AP)—Big Pebble, champion of the $75,000 Gold Cup handicap, leaves Hollywood Park tomorrow for Saratoga Springs, N. Y., to train for late summer and fall distance races in New England, New York and Maryland.

Jackie Westrope rode Big Pebble, winner of the Widener Cup, to victory in the biggest race of the summer season Saturday. Owner Edward S. Moore of Sheridan, Wyo., who collected $62,475 first money decided not to enter the champion in the $25,000 added Hollywood Sunset Handicap Saturday, reserving him for eastern engagements.

A photo-finish second in the Gold Cup was Paperboy. The highly-favored Midland was third, and Wing and Wing fourth. Big Pebble paid $12.80, $5.80 and $2.80, Paperboy $4.50 and $2.80, and Midland returned $2.20 to show.

Nazi Drives Stalled
From the Kremlin, Premier Joseph Stalin's high command reported violent overnight battles in the north, central and south warfronts, and it was indicated that the three Nazi drives pointed at Moscow, Leningrad and Kiev had been effectively stalled.
Hitler's field headquarters asserted that German forces still were plunging ahead, with numerous Red army units encircled or destroyed.
In the southern theater, the Nazi high command said "German, Rumanian and Hungarian troops are pursuing the defeated enemy" in a drive into the Soviet Ukraine.
"Through last night, stubborn fighting continued in the Polish-Novel, Smolensk and Novograd Volynsk directions," a Red army communiqué said this morning.
"On all other parts of the front nothing of significance occurred."
Russian Statement
The Russians declared officially that a Soviet infantry division surrounded and wiped out a "large enemy motorized formation," destroyed 100 German trucks, and captured 189 others, five tanks, four armoured cars, two planes and quantities of guns.
In another action, the Russians were reported to have wrecked 300 trucks, slaughtered two battalions of Nazi infantry, and taken prisoners and booty.
Behind the German lines, marauding Soviet guerrilla bands were said to have cut communications, ambushed Nazi troop columns and raided supply depots.
"Guerrilla detachments are inflicting heavy losses on the enemy," a Red army bulletin said.
In the war in the air, Premier Mussolini's high command reported that RAF bombers again raided the Italian west coast port of Naples early today, killing 10 persons and injuring 25.
Other RAF warplanes, swarming across the English channel in broad daylight, pounded the industrial city of Lille, in Nazi-occupied France, after smashing overnight at the German Rhineland and Nazi-held Rotterdam, the Netherlands.

themselves still facing a determined enemy on their east, and will be operating deep in a hostile territory which has been shorn of normal communications. Those communications can't be repaired in a day, and the Reich lacks gasoline and oil for extended motor transport.
It is a position like this that Britain and the allies are praying for, providing the Russians can't hold their line—and it will be an astonishing feat if they are able to maintain anything like their present positions. Meanwhile every day of fighting and destruction of material in the Russian zone is strengthening the allied position in the Atlantic, the western theater and the great Mediterranean area.
Mendota Youth Held After Fatal Accident
Chicago, July 21—(AP)—Ralph Yose, 17, of Mendota, was fined $10 and costs today under a Hillsdale village ordinance charge of failing to stop for an arterial sign at the scene of a fatal accident yesterday.
Yose had been booked for reckless driving but Police Sgt. Martin Stoltz of Hillsdale said the charge was reduced after a coroner's jury decided the death of William Schreiber, 50, of route 1, Downer's Grove, was an accident. Yose paid the fine and was released.
Schreiber was killed when his car and Yose's collided at Butterfield and Wolf Roads in Hillsdale.

Old Aluminum Received—
Today was the opening day for the collection of scrap aluminum which is being conducted throughout the United States. At the local headquarters at the city hall housewives of Dixon and vicinity have responded quite liberally and the members of the fire department who are accepting the donations, reported about 50 pounds of discarded aluminum kitchen utensils being received.
Dixon Merchant Stricken—
H. V. Massey of the Ace hardware store, suffered a severe heart attack in his place of business about 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon and reports today indicated that he was in a very critical condition at his home. He was stricken in the store and was removed to a physician's office where his condition made it necessary for him to remain until Saturday evening, when he was taken to his home in an ambulance.
Polo Motorist Fined—
(Telegraph Special Service)
Oregon, July 21—John Moser, of Polo, who was arrested here Saturday evening, today was fined $50 and costs by Justice Chester A. Landers on charges of operating an automobile without license plates and with not having a driver's license. In default of payment of the fine he was sent to the county jail.
Miss Kathryn Lewis Dies—
Word has been received of the death of Miss Kathryn Lewis of Ashtabula, Ohio, which occurred Saturday evening. Funeral services will be conducted in Ashtabula Wednesday. Miss Lewis will be remembered by many Dixon friends, she having been a registered nurse and at one time served as superintendent of Katherine Shaw Bethel hospital. She was a sister of Mrs. Putnam, wife of the Rev. Mr. Putnam, former pastor of the West End Congregational church.
Record Crowd at Lowell—
The ideal weather of Sunday attracted the largest crowd to Lowell park that has been present this summer. Park Police Officer William Teschendorff recorded visitors from 13 states in the popular outing place during the day. Cars from the following states brought picnickers to Lowell park Sunday: Indiana, Georgia, Iowa, Nebraska, Illinois, Wisconsin, North Carolina, Ohio, California, Minnesota, Michigan, North Dakota and Maryland.
Fugitives to Grand Jury—
(Telegraph Special Service)
Oregon, July 21—Hewie Stephens, Ned Farrar, Clayton Woods (all colored) and James Perry, fugitives from the Dixon State hospital, today were held to the Oregon county grand jury by Justice of the Peace Chester A. Landers of this city on charges of stealing an automobile in their flight from the institution. They were arrested by Night Deputy John Wiley and Policeman L. W. Cupp, the latter of Polo.
Children Cause Fire—
A barn owned by Herbert Geiger, Jr., located in the rear of 2015 Cummins street and occupied by the Clarence Cover family, was practically destroyed by fire Saturday afternoon about 5 o'clock, together with most of the contents. Members of the fire department reported that the fire was started by children playing with matches and the fire had gained considerable headway before an alarm was turned in. The loss which was partially covered by insurance was estimated at about $250. Sunday morning at 11:30 the department was called to the rear of 419 Monroe avenue where a grass fire was extinguished without damage to property.

Text of President Roosevelt's Message to Congress Favoring Extension of Military Service

Washington, July 21—(AP)—The text of President Roosevelt's message to congress on extending military service for selectees, National Guardsmen and reservists follows:
To the Congress of the United States:
Last year the Congress of the United States recognizing the gravity of the world situation held that common prudence required that American defense, at that time relatively very weak, be strengthened in its two aspects. The first called for the production of munitions of all kinds. The second called for the training and service of personnel. The selective training and service act authorized the annual induction into military service of a maximum of 900,000 men for this training and service, of whom 600,000 are now in the army. The congress also authorized the induction into service of the National Guard, the reserve officers, and other reserve components of the army of the United States.
In the absence of further action by the congress, all of those involved must be released from active service on the expiration of 12 months. This means that beginning this autumn about two-thirds of the Army of the United States will begin a demobilization.
The action taken last year was appropriate to the international situation at that time. It took into consideration the small size and the undeveloped state of our armed forces. The National Guard, which then formed the bulk of these forces, had to be seasoned; its technical training and general efficiency greatly improved. The ranks of the National Guard and the regular army had to be brought to full strength; and, in addition, the army required for its tremendous expansion the services of approximately 50,000 reserve officers.
In effect, two steps were taken for the security of the nation. First, the selective service act initiated annual military training as a prime duty of citizenship. Second, the organization and training of field armies was begun—training in team-work—company by company, battalion by battalion, regiment by regiment and division by division. The objective was to have ready at short notice an organized and integrated personnel of over 1,000,000 men.
I need scarcely emphasize the fact that if and when an organized and integrated company, battalion, regiment or division is compelled to send two-thirds of its members home, those who return to civil life, if called to the colors later on, would have to go through a new period of organization and integration before the new unit to which they were assigned could be depended on for service. The risks and the weaknesses caused by dissolving a trained army in times of national peril were pointed out by George Washington over and over again in his messages to the Continental Congress.
It is, therefore, obvious that if two-thirds of our present army return to civilian life, it will be almost a year before the effective army strength again reaches one million men.
Today it is imperative that I should officially report to the congress what the congress undoubtedly knows: That the international situation is not less grave but is far more grave than it was a year ago. It is so grave, in my opinion, and in the opinion of all who are conversant with the facts, that the army should be maintained in effective strength and without diminution of its effective numbers in a complete state of readiness. Small as it is in comparison with other armies, it should not suffer any form of disorganization or disintegration.
Therefore, we would be taking a grave national risk unless the congress were to make it possible for us to maintain our present full effective strength and during the coming year give training to as many additional Americans as we can, when immediate readiness for service becomes more and more vital precautionary measure, the elimination of approximately two-thirds of our trained soldiers, and about three-fourths of the total officer personnel, would be a tragic error.
Occasional individuals, basing their opinions on unsupported evidence or on no evidence at all, may with honest intent assert that the United States need fear no attack on its own territory or on the other nations of this hemisphere by aggressors from without.
Nevertheless, it is the well-nigh unanimous opinion of those who are daily cognizant, as military and naval officers and as government servants in the field of international relations, that schemes and plans of aggressor nations against American security are so evident that the United States and the rest of the Americas are definitely imperiled in their national interests. That is why reluctantly, and only after a careful weighing of all facts and all events, I recently proclaimed that an unlimited national emergency exists.
It is not surprising that millions of patriotic Americans find it difficult in the pursuit of their daily the army was concerned, the United States was in a woefully weak position. I do not believe that the danger to our national safety is only about the same as it was a year ago.

I do believe—I know—that the danger today is infinitely greater. I do believe—I know—that in all truth we are in the midst of a national emergency.
I am not asking the congress for specific language in a specific bill. But I can say frankly that I hope the congress will acknowledge this national emergency either for a specific period or until revocation by the congress or the president.
The objective is, of course, the all important issue. It is to authorize continuance in service of selectees, national guard and reserve components of the army and the retired personnel of the regular army, with the understanding that, should the exigencies of the situation permit, early return to civil pursuits will follow in due course.
Because of the swiftness of modern events, I think the congress should also remove the restrictions in regard to the number of selectees inducted each year for training and service.
And, in order to reduce individual hardships to a minimum, I urge that the congress provide that employers be asked to continue to keep jobs open for their employees who have been held in the army. For my part I will direct the return to civil life of officers and men whose retention on active duty would impose hardship and that selectees and enlisted men of the National Guard, who have reached the age of twenty-eight, be transferred from active service to a reserve component as rapidly as possible.
At great cost to the nation, and at increasing dislocation of private buying, we are accepting the material burdens necessary for our security. In such matters we accept the fact of a crisis in our history.
It is true that in modern war men without machines are of little value. It is equally true that machines without men are of no value at all. Let us consolidate the whole of our defense—the whole of our preparation against attack by those enemies of democracy who are the enemies of all that we hold dear.
One final word: Time counts. Within two months disintegration, which would follow failure to take congressional action, will commence in the armies of the United States. Time counts. The responsibility rests solely with the congress.
Franklin D. Roosevelt.

be acceptable in the gigantic collection campaign.
The Chicago Commission on National Defense assumed a quota of 500,000 pounds itself. Barnet Hodges, vice president, said identification cards had been issued to 40,000 volunteer collectors from civic groups, Boy and Girl Scouts, American Legionnaires and similar organizations have offered their help throughout the state.
Mountains of metal will be piled up in huge aluminum bins in Grant Park in Chicago, Fountain Square in Evanston, Oak Park which will stage a contest with Evanston, Market Square in Rock Island, Central Park in Decatur. Soldiers from Fort Sheridan, sailors from Great Lakes and police will guard the pile 24 hours a day in Chicago.
All police and fire stations and ward yards in Chicago were designated as repositories, and collection committees were named in 75 districts. Police Commissioner James P. Allman prudently ordered junk dealers to report any "suspicious sales" of aluminum during the week.

safety or non-aggression to the intended victim.
"Each campaign has been based on disarming fear and gaining time until the German government was fully ready to throw treaties and pacts to the winds and simultaneously to launch an attack in overwhelming force."
Issue Comes Nearer
"Each elimination of a victim has brought the issue of Nazi domination closer to this hemisphere, while month by month their intrigues of propaganda and conspiracy have sought to weaken every link in the community of interests that should bind the Americas into a great western family."
"I do not think that any branch of the government of the United States will be willing to let America risk the fate which has destroyed the independence of other nations."
Just prior to receipt of the message at the Capitol, Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) laid before the Senate a general war department order which he said was "designed to discourage the re-enlistment of army regulars who have served for three years."
"If three-year men are unwanted on a volunteer basis," Vandenberg said, "I fail to understand why it is indispensable to retain one-year conscripts."
Re-Enlistments Valueless?
The war department order stated that the object of placing a limitation on three-year enlistments was to give untrained men an opportunity for training. Re-enlistments of regulars, it added, are "of little benefit to the army."
In his message to Congress, the President emphasized that world conditions had changed since the 12-month limitation was placed a year ago on the service of the selectees, guardsmen and reservists. "Today it is imperative," he said, "that I should officially report to the congress what the congress undoubtedly knows: that the international situation is not less grave but is far more grave than it was a year ago."
"It is so grave, in my opinion, and in the opinion of all who are conversant with the facts, that the army should be maintained in effective strength and without diminution of its effective numbers in a complete state of readiness. Small as it is in comparison with other armies, it should not suffer any form of disorganization or disintegration."
Therefore, he said, it would be taking a grave national risk unless congress were to make possible the maintenance of the present, full, effective strength of the army during the coming year and give training to as many additional Americans as possible.
Would be "Tragic Error?"
He added that it would be a "tragic error" to eliminate about two-thirds of the trained soldiers and three-fourths of officer personnel.

Commodity Credit Corporation Seeks Grain Store Room

Chicago, July 21—(AP)—Commodity Credit Corporation officials today were scouring the Chicago area for space in which to store grain but they expressed belief the serious congestion here, with more than 500 cars waiting to be unloaded over the week-end, would be relieved soon.
Space for possibly 5,000,000 bushels has been found in downstate Illinois and Indiana but not all arrangements have been completed for diverting grain there.
Grain shippers have been warned not to send wheat to Chicago for storage under government loans unless they have made arrangements for space.
C. M. Hunter, of the CCC and secretary of the regional grain storage committee, said space for 600,000 to 700,000 bushels of storage wheat was available at Sheldon, Ill. 200,000 bushels at Pekin, 300,000 to 500,000 at Noblesville, Ind., and 80,000 to 100,000 at Indianapolis. Decatur, Ill., he said, has the most space available. Although only about 1,000,000 bushels of space there had actually been arranged for, Hunter said he understood more than 4,000,000 bushels room had been offered by three large processing concerns there. One of these, Ancher-Daniels-Midland Co., recently received a consignment of government wheat from the southwest.
Hunter said the regional grain handling and storage committee would not meet possibly until Wednesday, indicating that no unusual developments were expected in the meantime.

Handbooks Remain Illegal in State; Green Vetoes Bill

Governor Insists All Betting Parlors Can Be Suppressed

Springfield, Ill., July 21—(AP)—The legislature's proposal to legalize horse race betting parlors in Illinois was nullified firmly by Governor Green in a week-end veto which urged renewed efforts by law enforcement officials to bring about their extinction.

"Before we surrender," the governor wrote in his veto message, "it may be necessary to try the experiment of electing public officials who are honestly interested in suppressing gambling."

"That would at least be worth trying before giving up in defeat."

It was the second time a governor killed a legislative proposal to legalize operation of betting rooms away from the race tracks. The late Governor Henry Horner, in 1935, vetoed a similar measure which would have applied only to Chicago. The bill vetoed by Governor Green would have permitted any city to license and regulate bookies by ordinance.

Green attacked the principle involved in the bill, sponsored in the general assembly by Rep. Emmett McGrath (D-Brookfield), as conducive to "idleness and indolence."

"No normal parents would train their children in gambling rather than in the arts of hard work and thrift. This bill asks the state to do in the community what no parent would think of doing in his own home."

"Years of observation have taught us that gambling leads to idleness and indolence. Honest work and thrift become difficult for him who indulges in it. Gambling has often resulted in broken families and in theft and embezzlement. I do not desire to be a party to increasing that train of disastrous consequences."

In urging more earnest attempts to enforce present anti-gambling laws, the governor acknowledged arguments that "it is human nature to gamble and it cannot be suppressed and therefore should be legalized and licensed."

Must Check Risk-Taking
"It is true that love of risk-taking is present in a greater or less degree in all human beings; but it is a characteristic that must be held in check rather than encouraged," he declared.

"I am not convinced that gambling houses cannot be suppressed," he added. "We have seen that before elections, when city or county administrations in our metropolitan centers are striving to create a good impression upon the public, there seems to be no difficulty in closing places of gambling."

"It has also been rumored that in the metropolitan district those who are politically unacceptable to the officers in power are successfully suppressed, while the supposed impossibility of suppression is only in reference to those who are politically friendly."

"If gambling houses can be closed before elections, there would seem to be no reason why further headway could not be made if a conscientious effort were instituted by law enforcing officers and agencies in our metropolitan area."

Cites Attorney General
The governor pointed out that Attorney General George F. Barrett had found the bill's hidden intent was to authorize "lotteries" and "gift enterprises," both expressly forbidden by the constitution of 1870.

Capital observers thought the veto might presage renewal of attempts by state law enforcement officials to close illegal bookies. Attorney General Barrett recently asked the governor for a detail of 50 state policemen with which to enforce an injunction against more than 2,000 alleged handbook operators in all sections of the state.

Cook County State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney in a statement praising the veto, declared it would reinforce the anti-handbook injunction issued last December by Judge Maurice V. Jovee in the St. Clair county circuit court.

Courtney said there was no doubt that, had the bookie bill become law, "the hoodlums, left-overs from the prohibition era, would force themselves into this lucrative field."

Mayor Edward J. Kelly, after reading of the governor's veto, said the city of Chicago would continue to "suppress any illegal forms of action or operations."

Families Need Amusement Even If Living Costs Keep Going Higher

By Paul Gesner and John Beckley
New York—(The Special News Service)—There's a question in many minds today:

In a cycle of rising prices, should hobbies and amusements be maintained?

We put this question to three commercial bankers well-qualified at giving sound financial advice. The three also are well qualified to speak on hobbies and amusements. All have hobbies and amusements of their own.

Said Banker Number One: "I like to play golf. I play twice a week. It costs me money. But I like to play golf. If my salary was cut to $25 a week, I'd move out of my home, maybe, and take a furnished room somewhere, but every week I'd save a dollar or two out of my salary to pay the green fee on some public links. I'd keep on playing golf."

Said Banker Number Two: "I like fresh water fishing. It is an inexpensive pastime. If I had hobbies that were taking dollars that I needed for rent and food, and a rise in the cost of living made me scrimp, I'd reduce expenses all along the line. But I'd keep on fishing. A hobby doesn't have to be expensive to be fun. Some day I'm going to try clay modeling. That's not expensive. And I'll bet it's entertaining and relaxing."

Banker Number Three called in his secretary, scratched his head, then dictated a few words to the secretary. She typed the words on a sheet of paper. He edited what she had transcribed, then said, "Here. Read this. It is what I think about hobbies and amusements when living costs are going up."

Here is what he wrote: "Don't deny yourself and your family its quota of relaxation and fun. Maintain present interest in photography, fishing, golf, motor-ing, hiking, theatre, or whatever combination of pastimes you like. Put hobby and amusement spending, however, on a rough budget basis to see exactly what costs are each month. Try not to exceed present hobby and amusement outlay. Later, if rising living costs demand, reduce the number of hobbies or replace expensive ones with inexpensive ones."

Here are some other suggestions on living costs:
Installment buying: A rise in living costs pares the purchasing power of each dollar in the pay envelope. If a substantial portion of these dollars have been earmarked for payments of goods contracted for on the installment plan, and daily living expenses go up, the fixed income man faces a tight squeeze until he has completed his time payments.

Avoid over-extending of installment purchases of goods such as automobiles, refrigerators, pianos, furniture, radios, and allied items, if you are pushing along on a fixed income. This is the advice of an important executive of a department store selling goods to people on a time payment basis.

"If yours is a fixed income," he said, "make it a fast and hard rule that no greater amount of your future income shall be earmarked for installment payments than the sum at present no matter whether large or small—if meeting present time payments is difficult."

Accounting: Another important step in taking the sting out of rising living costs is to conserve dollars by damming up pocket leaks.

A study of pocket outgo often reveals nickels, dimes, quarters and half-dollars slipping through the fingers for street peddlers' novelties, office bets, five o'clock drinks, pinball games, juke box music, unnecessary telephone calls and taxicab fares.

Keep track of all pocket spending for one week, itemize outgo to every penny, to ferret out money leaks for non-essentials.

Sidelines: If possible, seek sidelines for extra income.

Scores of school teachers earn $50 to $500 and board and room for themselves and their families during summer vacation as counselors at boys' camps.

A municipal employee, whose working day ends at 4 p. m., grows tomatoes and other fresh vegetables on a piece of country acreage worked on shares with the owner-farmer.

Contingencies: Maintain life insurance, automobile liability insurance, hospitalization insurance, and regular savings programs as protection against contingencies, the experts say, even though budgetary sacrifices are required elsewhere. You can, of course, drop insurance safely if you have $100,000 in the bank for emergencies, or a rich uncle in Australia.

Final analysis:
The whole secret of beating rising prices is keeping your spending within your income, no matter what means you take.

And don't worry too much about rising living costs yet.

The administration in Washington insists it is not going to let living costs get out of hand.

Much can be done to avert or brake runaway prices if federal officials keep alert, watch trends closely, and handle their price control powers wisely.

1,000-Bed Veterans' Hospital at Marion Forecast by Hines

Marion, Ill., July 21—(AP)—Expansion of the new veterans hospital here to a 1,000-bed unit was forecast by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines Sunday at dedication ceremonies climaxing the annual fifth division American Legion convention.

The administrator of veterans' affairs asserted that the initial construction under way at a cost of $1,350,000 and providing a 160-bed unit was only a beginning and that 75 hospital beds and 785 dormitory beds would be added as funds became available.

"This additional construction already has been approved in principle as part of our 100,000-bed national program," he said.

Another convention speaker was Gov. Dwight H. Green who called upon Illinoisans to join him in a drive to reduce governmental expenses so funds will be available to meet mounting costs of national defense.

Americans Capture Forces Defending British Airdrome

Maneuver Shows Plans for Defense of Air Fields Faulty

London, July 21—(AP)—The British army's plan for defending air fields probably will be reviewed as a sequel to maneuvers in which a score of middle-aged American business men captured the heavily manned general headquarters of a brigade defending an important air-drome.

The feat was accomplished in fog and rain yesterday despite the presence of from 300 to 500 British troops with full equipment, including Bren guns and heavy machine-guns.

The attacking Americans were aided by "fifth columnists", including a golfer and man who simulated drunkenness. They rushed the headquarters to capture maps and secret documents and dismantled the switchboard.

Umpires estimated their losses at only 10 men.

The Americans, residents of England, commanded by Gen. Wade Hampton Hayes, scouted the scene of the attack thoroughly.

The golfer made practice shots to study machine-gun emplacements. A casual stroller took a complete set of pictures of the headquarters area—this in spite of regulations strictly forbidding cameras near airdromes. A dog was used by another American operative. He tossed a stick into bushes shielding a machine-gun position. The dog chased the stick. He followed the dog. He learned which way the gun pointed.

With details of the airdrome defense complete, Hayes led "parachutists" in the attack and although the British gun defending that particular zone opened fire, most of them were officially declared to have survived to reach cover.

Armed with Tommy-guns, revolvers, tear gas and hand grenades and with the rain increasing to lower visibility, the Americans rose from their positions and rushed a sentry guarding a gap in the wire. He was overpowered and ruled dead.

The Americans poured through the gap, tossed tear gas bombs through a window and knocked down a door. They dashed up stairs to seize maps which they said would be invaluable in actual battle, orders and other documents.

"We had to give them back their maps and orders," an American chuckled, "so they could continue their exercise."

Two Accidents on Pines Park Hi-Way Saturday, Sunday

(Telegraph Special Service)
Oregon, July 21—As the result of one of two week-end accidents on the Pines state park road, west of Oregon, Warren Garde of Rockford, was scheduled for arraignment before Ogle County Judge Phillip H. Nye today on charges of operating an automobile while intoxicated, and several other persons involved in the crashes received treatment at the Warmolts clinic here.

Garde was arrested after the car he was operating, and in which Mrs. Mabel Kappenman of Leaf River and Ed Paul of Pine Rock township were passengers, left the road and crashed into a culvert about five miles west of Oregon Saturday evening. Their injuries consisted of cuts and bruises.

A similar accident on the same highway at about 9:30 o'clock Sunday evening, in which their car struck a culvert about two and one half miles west of this city, sent Robert Miller, 21, and Shirley Hasse, 15, both of Beloit, Wis., to the clinic, the latter suffering a fractured pelvis. Deputy Sheriff Hungerford investigated.

Glider Expert Says They Will Soon Be Common

By DEVON FRANCIS
Saugus, Calif.—(The Special News Service)—Hawley Bowlus, one of the country's leading authorities on glider construction, declares unequivocally that glider trains for air freighting will be a common sight in the near future.

He is well acquainted with what Germany has done with gliders militarily.

Ten years ago he was associated with Wolf Hirth in a motorless flight training project in New York. Now Hirth is in charge of such training in Germany.

Bowlus, a large and rather intense man, says he is unable to understand why the United States has permitted Germany to take the lead in this type of flying. He regards the success of the Crete campaign as a personal vindication of a 31-year fight to popularize gliding.

Fully six months ago, says Bowlus, one factory alone was producing 500 gliders a month for German military use. Each could carry eight men. German motorless flight developments include gliders which can land on water and make shore with the aid of small outboard motors.

Forecast by Bowlus
As for the commercial use of gliders, Bowlus forecasts:

"As sure as you are knee-high to a duck, the airlines will be using them for freight and air mail in trains behind airplanes within five years. Gliders will carry passengers eventually, too."

"We have figured out that a standard commercial transport flying at 150 miles an hour with all its 21 seats filled as usual, can tow three gliders cross-country, each carrying 20 persons."

By "we," Bowlus means himself and his associates in a small factory in nearby San Fernando, one of such plants in the United States. The others are in Elmira, N. Y., Joliet, Ill., and Van Nuys, Calif.

From these factories presently will begin flowing larger gliders ordered by the United States army air force. Army officers now are taking glider training at Elmira and Joliet.

Bowlus believes this country has as much to learn from Russia as from Germany in the field of motorless flight. The Russians, he says, have flown as many as 21 gliders in train, dropping them from a power-plane tow and then picking them up again in flight.

Bowlus' interest in gliding began under a cottonwood tree on a San Fernando valley ranch in the year 1910. His parents were homesteading the place. The tree usually was black with buzzards. He watched the buzzards dive out of the trees, and soar on air currents with no apparent effort.

"That," he told himself, "is the way to fly."

First Glider
The first Bowlus glider, by his own statement, was "pretty crummy looking," put together with bailing wire, but it flew. He took off by running down a hillside and pulling up his legs when he attained enough speed.

He crashed that one, built others. Part of his manufacturing technique involved using chair rockers for skids, to take up the shock of landing.

The army taught him to fly in 1917, but he never managed to get up much enthusiasm about powered airplanes. He kept building gliders. But he hadn't soared yet like a buzzard.

One day in 1929 he told a brother, "Doggone it, there's only one place in California where we haven't been to fly a glider. That's Point Loma, San Diego. Let's try it."

At Point Loma he broke the Wright Brothers' record of nine minutes, 10 seconds, for motorless flight by remaining aloft 14 minutes, 28 seconds. Subsequently, he managed to stay up as long as 9 hours 5 minutes.

Found Slain in Massachusetts

While police were questioning a 15-year-old boy about the attack-slaying of Constance Shipp, 15 (right) at Reading, Mass., an anonymous phone call led to the finding of the mutilated body of Frances Cochran, 19 (left), of Lynn, Mass., only 15 miles away.

Study Mysterious Depletion of State Underground H2O

Urbana, Ill.—(AP)—Causes of a mysterious depletion of Illinois' underground water supplies in the last quarter century, undergo a special study by engineers of the state division of water supply.

A. M. Buswell, chief of the water survey division, announced today details of the survey for which the legislature recently voted a $25,000 appropriation.

Buswell said the survey would begin in the industrial areas of East St. Louis, Joliet and Peoria-Pekin, where the need for increased water supplies may become greatest in the future.

"The work will consist of detailed cataloging of all existing wells and possible reservoir sites, the installation of recording gauges to determine accurately fluctuations in ground water levels, and experimental studies to determine possible means of replenishing ground water supplies by flooding," Buswell said.

"For the past 20 to 25 years there has been evidence of a depletion of ground water," he continued. "The situation is not limited to Illinois, but exists more or less throughout the central, mid-western and eastern portion of the United States."

Accumulation of Records
"The accumulation of long time records has indicated that this ground water recession is not due to a decrease in average rain fall."

"It may be due in part to general, industrial and agricultural developments, or it may be due to causes independent of human activities. For example, it has been known for many years that the level of the large bodies of surface water such as the Great Lakes follow cycles which cannot be correlated directly to artificial conditions or to temporary changes in climatic conditions."

"The great increase in industrial activity last fall and winter due to the defense program called particular attention to this water supply problem. In other states as well as Illinois (Ohio, for example) special appropriations were sought from the legislature to speed up the investigation of these ground water problems, especially in areas of great present and anticipated activities."

Buswell said the survey later would be extended to various other sections of the state.

Several Bolivians Arrested Charged With German Plot

County, Quiet, Placed Under State of Siege by Government

La Paz, Bolivia, July 21—(AP)—A number of prominent Bolivians, including former Finance Minister Victor Paz Esenssoro, were under arrest today in connection with an alleged nazi plot which police said had been smashed by the timely action of President Enrique Penaranda, advocate of close cooperation, was ordered expelled from the country. President Penaranda said he had documentary proof that the minister had attempted to meddle in Bolivia's domestic affairs.

Esenssoro, a member of the Chamber of Deputies, and cabinet member until June 20 when he resigned in a disagreement over exchange rate of the peso and dollar, was described by police as head of "the nationalist revolutionary movement." That organization was dissolved automatically with proclamation of a state of siege.

Commenting on the action against Wendler, the president declared in an interview that the government "could not adopt such serious measures without being fully convinced that its attitude was based on justice."

Another government source charged Wendler "provided the channel of communications between a Bolivian military man now in Germany and young army officers here who favor a totalitarian form of government."

The "nationalist revolutionary movement" was described by administration leaders as a small party banded together with the aid of German residents of La Paz. A majority of the Germans, it was declared, worked with the reich's diplomatic agents and financed activities by taxing the German colony.
